Men's Program Internship Training

The Counterpoint Men's Program Facilitator training was officially launched in 2004. This training offers a total of 185 hours of training for those who want training to work with abusive men. It includes theory classes, group work, supervision, peer review, team development meetings, mentoring and numerous opportunities for personal and professional development in domestic violence through an internship.

The training encompasses diverse aspects of domestic violence including the context of violence against women, philosophy, and principles of domestic violence work and the Coordinated Community Response model in Toronto. The group work approach in this training is based on Paulo Freire's pedagogy and the well-known Duluth psycho-educational model. Counterpoint senior staff are responsible for instructing and supervising the internship program. Senior staff at Counterpoint and affiliates consist of psychologists, social workers and program workers who have many years of experience in doing group work and men's programs.
